Will Belligerent Powers Get the Money?

GOLD! GOLD! is the plea of every nation now fighting in Europe. Each power is hoarding all that it can lay hands upon, each individual of each nation is hiding away what he can because of the reckoning which is to come. The printing press, tearing off "money," is supplying troops with food and munitions, and some day the paper money being printed to finance the war will come up for redemption. The situation as it is today and as it will be in the near future is admirably outlined in next Sunday's Magazine by Burton J. Hendrick, who has made a deep study of the question.

When She Said "Yes"

IF you have watched the "movies," even for only a night, you have seen some little beauty of the screen say "Yes" to her manly lover. There are many different ways of saying it, depending on the situation and the girl who says it. How they do it in many a way may be seen in next Sunday's Magazine. A double page of pictures tells the story.

She Makes $300,000 Worth of Flies

THERE is a girl in Denver, Col., who makes flies for a living, but not houseflies—trout flies. She has been doing it for more than ten years, and each year she has added to her force of helpers until her remarkable business has been built to huge proportions. Her picture and story are in next Sunday's Magazine.

She Listened Behind the Curtain

THE prettiest stenographer in the world came to help a playwright. She was so pretty he couldn't help telling her so, and that, of course, made her angry. Along came an actress who tried to blackmail the playwright, but the pretty little stenographer who had been sent out of the room listened with notebook in hand. As to what happened after that, read Holworthy Hall's story, "The Brown Eyes of the Law," in next Sunday's Magazine of
